

PRODUCTS AS SEEN THROUGH THE BUSINESS ARCHITECTURE LENS

From a business architecture perspective, products and services are always defined within the context of the external customer. Capabilities enable products and services, and technology automates those enabling capabilities. This approach ensures a continual focus on serving the ultimate customers of an organization.

